Rev. Dr. Harry Serio

Celtic Spirituality: Thin Places and the Silence of Intimacy

Celtic spirituality recognizes the presence of God in all things, and therefore we are connected to each other and to the earth. Explore this sense of belonging in the thin places where various dimensions of existence become transparent, and in moments of silence when we hear other voices and the music of our daily living with each other.

Rev. Andy Lang

When the Mind is Called the Heart: Embodied Spirituality in Puritan New England

The Puritans, like the earlier Reformed tradition, embraced a spirituality that searched for the presence of God in all times and places. Their spiritual practices included walking meditation, poetry and the experience of union with Christ in the Lord's Supper. Reformed and Puritan spirituality has much to teach us in the current revival of spiritual practices in Protestant churches.

Colloquy includes times of worship, meditation, discussion & bible reflection, and sometimes opportunities for mission experiences. Attendees may receive CEU credits upon request.
